

including an interview with Dame Judi Dench

“Keith Ramsay’s story of producing thirty years of the Lincoln Mystery Plays makes fascinating reading, whether he’s escorting home the Magna Carta from Portland, Oregon or trying to release God from a German lavatory in time to create the world!”

Timothy West

This slim and attractive volume is the first-hand account, written by a theatre professional, of directing and playing in the Lincoln Mystery Plays. The author, Keith Ramsay, balances the solemnity his biblical material calls for with the rough and tumble of managing a working theatrical troupe – always with a grace and charm and tender heart. We travel with that troupe from Lincoln Cathedral to Southwell Minster, where the plays are performed on English soil, and are offered wry observation and practical insight after its tours of Europe and the USA, in a catalogue of incidents recorded over the best part of twenty-five years.

Copies of the book can be bought direct from the author at £9.99 post free in the UK
